Journal of Paramedic Practice (JPP) is the monthly journal dedicated to best practice in prehospital care. We understand the requirements of your role and the challenges you face – articles are commissioned from your fellow practitioners and peer-reviewed to guarantee quality, accessibility and relevance.

Every edition contains the latest clinical information published with its practical application, to help readers reflect on their practice and improve their skills. We also provide expert analysis and advice on the issues that matter to paramedics, plus an online CPD programme – everything you need on your continued professional journey.

Aysha Mendes, Editor

Essential features

ACCESS FULL-TEXT ARTICLES
Your LKS ASE subscription offers access to all journal content excluding the last 12 months.

CLINICAL PRACTICE
Evidence-based articles on all aspects of urgent care in the pre-hospital environment, including paramedic assessment and practical skills.

RESEARCH
Peer-reviewed, original research, chosen for its relevance and published with its application to practice.

Recent highlights

- Fascia iliaca compartment block: a short how-to guide
- Advanced prehospital stroke triage in the era of mechanical thrombectomy
- Hyperventilation syndrome: diagnosis and reassurance
- Splinting of injuries: best practice guidance

EDUCATION
An in-depth look at paramedic education, with discussion on future learning, training and career development.

LEADERSHIP AND MANAGEMENT
Coverage of new national and local initiatives to share leadership theory, projects and training for practising paramedics.

For more information contact LKS ASE

Email: Library@nwas.nhs.uk
Mobile: 07747456736
Website: https://ambulance.libguides.com

Current content and CPD modules can be accessed with a personal subscription via www.paramedicpractice.com